

WELCOME TO MONTREAL

As a confluence of cultures, languages, and commerce, Montreal is a city of great history – though recent history has been less than great for the Liberal Party of Canada. Having lost the support of more than 760,000 Quebecers, it is easier to find a Toronto Maple Leafs fan than a Liberal MP in today's Montreal.

So, on behalf of the Liberal Party, we welcome you to Montreal (oh, and if anyone outside asks, you are here for the Auto Show).

“What happened with the sponsorship file occurred on the watch of a Liberal government.”
– Paul Martin, televised address, April 21, 2005

“This is a Quebec issue...I guess that's how they do politics there.” - Hon. Joe Comuzzi, former Liberal cabinet minister, Thunder Bay Chronicle Journal, February 12, 2004

Liberals “were directly involved in illegal campaign financing” and “disregarded the relevant laws governing donations to political parties” - Justice John Gomery, Inquiry into the Sponsorship Program Summary, p. 78.

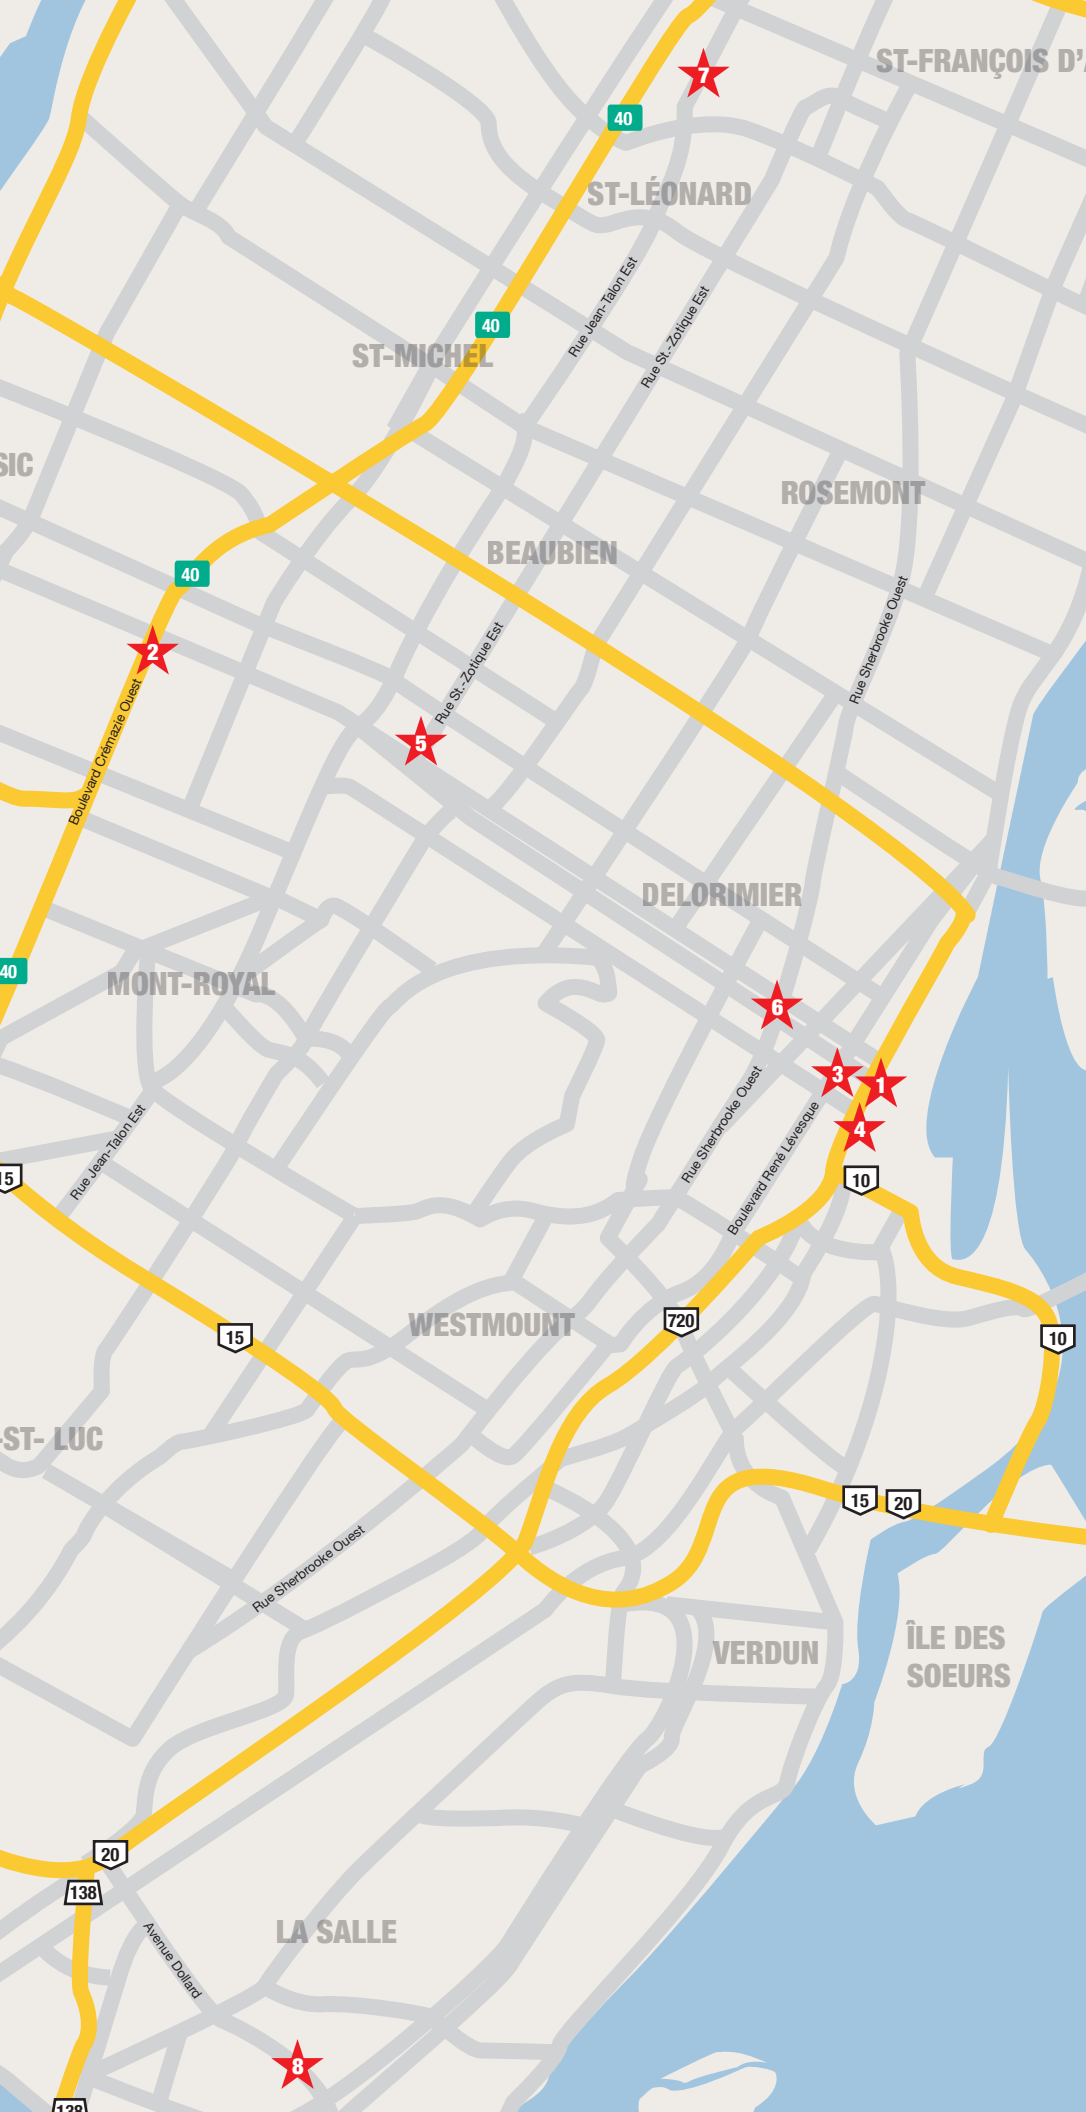

“The Quebec debate was amateur hour and must have been an embarrassment to the candidates, all of them impressively accomplished. It is hard to see a credible prime minister emerging from such a gong show.”
–Susan Riley, Ottawa Citizen, September 11, 2006

LIBERAL PARTY OF CANADA MAP TO THE SCARS

★ 159, RUE SAINT-ANTOINE OUEST

YOU ARE HERE. The Palais des congrès is the location for the Liberal Leadership Convention. It is here that delegates are invited to relive pre-Gomery glory days and, oh yeah, you will also be asked to select a worthy successor to Paul Martin using the exact same system of backroom dealing used to select William Lyon Mackenzie-King in 1919. Modern Liberalism, indeed.

And because no one does irony better than the Liberal Party, the Palais des congrès also happens to be exact same place where parties to the Kyoto Protocol gathered only one year ago to observe that under the Liberals, Canada's greenhouse gas emissions had increased 30% since 1990. Promise made? Er, nevermind.

★ 110 CREMAZIE WEST, SUITE 422

The brains of the Liberal Party in Quebec are right here at LPCQ headquarters. The Liberal Party is an great institution in Quebec, and as Justice Gomery said "The LPCQ as an institution cannot escape responsibility for the misconduct of its officers and representatives." Feeling entitled? So are we.

★ 200 RENÉ-LÉVESQUE BLVD. WEST

From February to June 2005 the Gomery Commission was the only show in town, and it all happened right here at the Complexe Guy-Favreau. Pay us a visit and relive the accusations, the denials, and the raw absentmindedness of Liberal stars like Gilles-André Gosselin, Jean Lafleur, Jean Brault, Jacques Corriveau, Claude Boulay, and who could forget the performance of Joseph "Chuck" Guité? Admission is only $100 million to Liberal-friendly ad firms.

★ 759 SQUARE VICTORIA

Come and visit Paul Martin's corporate paradise: the headquarters of Canada Steamship Lines (not to be confused with his fiscal paradise: c/o Clark, Gittens and Farmer, St. Michael, Barbados)

★ 65 SAINT-ZOTIQUE ST.

The reviews are in! Restaurant Frank is a great place for dining, and for doing business. Don't take our word for it, just read the testimony!

"I arrived at the agreed-upon time . . . I brought the envelope, an envelope with $5,000, and we made small talk . . . I had gone to the men's room. When I came back, the two of them were sitting there, the envelope wasn't there any more . . . As if nothing had happened." – Jean Brault, transcription of the proceedings of the Gomery Commission, 31 March 2005. Delicious!

★ 75 SHERBROOKE ST. WEST

No Liberal visit to Montreal is complete without a dropping by the offices of Groupaction Marketing Inc. – the home of "money for little or no work."

★ SUITE 840, 6020 JEAN TALON ST. EAST

Go back in time to and relive part of Liberal history. From the eighth floor offices that were once the constituency office of Alphonso Gagliano, you can imagine you are the Sponsorship Boss! "Get Guite on the phone!" "Let's pay for that report again!" "Denmark calling?"

★ 1275 DOLLARD AVENUE

If the head of the Liberal Party is on Cremazie, the . . . um, other end is right here. The Buffet Sorrento is one of LaSalle's premier reception facilities, and on January 23, 2006, it was also where Paul Martin held his reception for the rebuke Canadians gave the Liberal Party for their 13 years of arrogance, inaction and corruption. Proving that Buffet Sorrento is an elegant place for weddings . . . and divorces.
